

- What is State Management?
  - State Management is the ability to render the state of your page
- In what way can you think React leverages good State Management principles? React allows state to be treated like an object in order to render each component
- What is the difference React and JavaScript? What is the same? Javascript is the programming language and React is more of a Javascript Library that allows the use of JSX. They both utilize Javascript to render components.